OIL NEWS.

[BY E. T. KEMPER]

Weather conditions remain so favorable there is no let up in field work in this territory, and great activity is being witnessed on every side. New faces are being constantly seen here among the oil fraternity, and inquiries for acreage and data on this section are coming from far and near. It has been thought that with the approach of the winter season interest would lag and that not much could be counted on until spring, but so far there is nothing whatever to warrant such a belief, and present indications are that development work will be pushed to the utmost right on through the winter months. This is as it should be, and means much to this section and the men who are devoting their best efforts to the developing of the territory.

The most important happenings in local oil circles during the past week was the bringing in of two additional fine wells at Creelsboro. The Beacon Oil Syndicate, Chicago, drilled in well No. 2 on the farm of Campbell Brothers at 229 feet with oil standing 180 feet in the hole. This well is some 300 feet distant from McMeade well No. 4, on the same farm. Just across Cumberland river on the Cyrus Campbell farm, the J. E. Caraphan Oil Company, Canton, O., brought in their No. 1 at 330 feet, and reliable reports say it looks very promising. Some high estimates have been ventured as to the production of the wells, as well as others in that locality, but there is only one safe guide in these matters, and that is actual pumping tests, so until that time no one can say just what the wells will show. It is believed, however, that they are good ones and that there is a real pool of oil in that locality.

The wells referred to in preceding items are located very near and in line with the old Gabbert well. This well was drilled some forty years ago to a depth of 225 feet, and tradition says it was "a great producer." What capacity it had is not really known, but it is known that there was sufficient oil to warrant the building of a refinery at the well, and that it was operated successfully for quite a period, Cumberland river boats being the means of transportation for the product.

Mr. J. B. Doolittle, Worcester, New York, arrived Saturday to look after his drilling operations on the Geo. Powell farm, on Cedar Creek, near Joppa, seven miles out on the Jamestown road. Mr. Doolittle has one of the finest drilling rigs ever brought to Adair county, and it will be operated to the limit.

Mr. S. L. Ginter, of Olympia, Wash., who arrived here a few days ago with his family, has secured a suite of offices in the Paull Drug Building and has established general headquarters for the Ginter Brokerage Company. Mr. Ginter has associated with him locally Mr. C. P. Henderson, an experienced field man late from the Bowling Green field. Other associates of Mr. Ginter are Mr. W. F. Coast, Cincinnati; Mr. W. K. White, Bowling Green, Ohio, and Mr. F. L. Moore, of the same city. These three latter gentlemen are among the big operators of the country, and their entry into this territory means much to future development. The Company has already secured considerable acreage in this section, and they expect to begin operations on an extensive scale at no distant date.

Dr. J. W. Goggin, Chicago, vice-president and general manager of the Beacon Oil Syndicate, and also a director in the Bagdad Company, accompanied by Dr. Wm. C. Walker, Chicago, one of his business associates, spent a portion of the past week here and in the Creelsboro field. They were fortunate in seeing the drilling in of their No. 2 well, which promises to be a fine producer. Well No. 3 on the Campbell farm is now drilling, and the work is being pushed to the utmost.

Mr. Thos. A. Sheridan, Cincinnati, has opened and fitted up very commodious offices in the Russell Building, and his field operations will be directed from this place. They are down some 200 feet with well No. 1 on Pumpkin Creek and work is progressing as rapidly as conditions will permit. Mr. Sheridan has just purchased through Mr. O. C. Fink, this city, local representative of the Armstrong Mfg. Company, Waterloo, Ia., one of their No. 19 special drilling rigs, and also a supply of "fishing" tools, shipment to be delivered at the earliest possible date.

A twenty year franchise for supplying the citizens of Columbia with Gas was purchased last week by the Green River Gas Company. These people are now supplying Campbellsboro and Greensburg with gas in satisfactory quantities, and their local manager, Mr. J. B. Cheveront, is authority for the statement that they will build a pipe line from their Taylor county wells into Columbia without delay.

Mr. S. D. Jarvis, Newkirk, Oklahoma, manager for the Decatur Drilling Syndicate, arrived Saturday to spend sometime in looking after their drilling operations on Brush Creek, Cumberland county. Mr. Dallas Goff, this city, is in charge of field operations and he reports good progress being made.

Satisfactory progress is being made in drilling operations of the Columbia Development Company, on the Bob Rowe farm, and the Palmer Oil & Gas Company on the Sam Royse farm, both near town. Some very satisfactory formations are being encountered, and small quantities of oil and gas have already been found in both wells.

Mr. G. A. Roy, Nicholasville, president of the Roy Petroleum Company, was here during the week, and he reported very satisfactory progress now being made with their drilling operations on Damron's Creek. A new boiler has been installed, and it is thought the work will progress uninterruptedly in the future. They are down something over 500 feet, and are going still deeper, notwithstanding the fact they have found oil at shallower depths.

Mr. H. G. Schneider, Denver, Colorado, was here for several days the past week making a survey of this section in the interests of certain operators of that city who expect to begin development work in this territory as soon as practicable. Mr. Schneider left Saturday to spend the holidays at home, but expects to return here right after the first of the year. He expressed himself as being very favorably impressed with the local territory.

A Distinguished Young Lady.

Two weeks ago Miss Ruth Page, daughter of Dr. L. F. and Mrs. Marian Page, Indianapolis, was a very pleasant visitor to relatives in this place. Her father's old home. Miss Page is an artistic dancer, and has charmed audiences in New York, Chicago, Toledo, cities in South America, London, England, and other cities across the waters. She is only about twenty years of age, perfect in form, possessing all the graces that come to a refined young lady, and perhaps has received more compliments from the press than any other artist of her age in this or any foreign countries. She dances as much for what she gets out of it in physical culture, as she does to please her admirers. Her mother, a charming woman, is with her in all her engagements.

She was recently abroad and while in London she was the attraction at the Coliseum. In speaking of her the Daily London Mirror says: "The butterfly dance performed by pretty and youthful Ruth Page is the finest thing of its kind we have seen, and this young lady should have a great future awaiting her." The London Mail says, "Nineteen year old Ruth Page, the wonderful dancer, is a most supple and alluring person." The New York Evening Sun says: "Ruth Page, the pretty youngster who was the memorable Infanta, was delicious in Bal Masque pantomime and proved her spiritual right to the batik and wings of a butterfly."

There are many other notices from leading papers just as complimentary as the above.

Smith--Collins

Last Sunday afternoon Miss Virginia Smith, daughter of Mrs. Sallie Smith, who lives a few miles out of town, was happily married to Mr. Virgil Collins, the jovial clerk at the Jeffries Hotel, this place.

The ceremony was performed by Eld. Z. T. Williams, at his residence, in the presence of a few special friends, and at the conclusion the couple left for the home of the groom's parents.

The bride has many friends about Columbia, having been educated at the Lindsey-Wilson.

The groom is genial and has a large circle of friends, all of whom extend their best wishes to him and his companion.

A Suggestion.

One of our most prominent citizens has expressed himself as being in favor of a municipal board composed entirely of women. He says that a competent board could be easily selected, and that if the town would elect women to this position, they would take more interest in the affairs of the town, and besides they would have more time to devote to the necessary improvements, and that they would take a pride in their duties. Furthermore, men who are elected to the municipal board accept the position very reluctantly, hence they do not have the proper interest. What do you think of the move?

Don't forget we have a large stock of Toys and Dolls.

A New Romance of the Storm Country

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Lonely and almost friendless, Tonnieb Devon, living on a canal boat, child of a brutal father and a worn-out, discouraged mother, wanders into a Salvation army hall at Ithaca, N. Y. There she meets a young Salvation army captain, Philip MacCauley.

CHAPTER II.—Uriah Devon, Tony's father, returns to the boat from a protracted "sneeze" and announces he has arranged for Tony to marry a worthless companion of his, Reginald Brown. Mrs. Devon objects, and Uriah beats her. She intimates there is a secret connected with Tonnieb.

When Tonnieb felt the water over her, she swept to the lake's bottom with one long stroke. Then deftly she rid herself of her dress skirt and began to swim swiftly under the water.

They were tense minutes that the two men stood waiting, until suddenly beyond them to the south a curly head came above the water's edge. Then they leapt to the shore and raced toward the place she must land. To the panting girl it was a race for life.

Suddenly, like a flashing glimpse from Heaven, the words, "Stand Still and See the Salvation of the Lord," floated before her eyes like a flame of gold. Philip MacCauley's deep voice seemed to speak them in her ringing ears immediately after. "Giddy," she groaned, "Salvation of the Lord, oh, darlin' Salvation."

Just then her feet touched the pebbles on the bottom of the lake. With one wild leap she was on the shore and up the bank, Uriah screaming at her to stop.

She heard the two men crashing after her. That her short, swift leaps could outdistance them for long if she tried for the boulevard, she had no hope. But all about her were giant friends with outstretched arms, offering her shelter. For one instant she paused, then sprang into the air, caught the lower branch of a great pine tree and like a squirrel scurried up it. Almost at the top, spanned over by the blue sky, she crawled out to the end of a big limb and clung to it. Beneath her the men paused and shouted curses up at her. Tonnieb cared nothing for curses. She'd heard them all her life, used them, too, when she felt like it.

Suddenly there came to her ears the lapping of a paddle in the lake. She flung up her head, peeped out and saw a canoe taking its leisurely way toward Ithaca. She bent over and looked down.

"Daddy," she cried, "there's some one rowin' on the lake. I'm goin' to holler like h—l. And when he comes, I'll tell 'im how you banged Ede, and if she's croaked you'll both get jailed. . . . Here's where I holler!"

She sent out a quick birdlike trill, and the man in the canoe held his paddle suspended in the air as he studied the forest. This didn't interest Tonnieb as much as did the fact that Devon and Reggie Brown jumped to their feet and raced away toward the boulevard. Tonnieb from her perch saw them disappear toward Ithaca before she slid to the ground.

The man in the canoe, too, made but a short pause before he dipped his paddle and shot away. On the deck of the boat Tonnieb picked up Gussie-Piglet and, dripping wet, went swiftly down the cabin steps. There she found her mother on the bunk, her face discolored by her husband's blows. She looked as if she were dead, and for a moment the forlorn child of the wilderness uttered heartbroken little cries for help.

The cabin was cluttered in the struggle Uriah Devon had had with his wife. In despair Tony looked around. The old clothes daddy had brought home were strewn over the cabin floor. Tonnieb heaped them together, then began to examine them.

They needed nothing but pressing. This she'd do to save her mother the work; and perhaps the fact that he had something ready to sell would make Uriah less brutal when he came back. In running her fingers over a coat, searching for small rents, Tony felt something between the lining and outside, a book it seemed like, which she hastily pulled out. It was small and much worn. There wasn't any money in it, in fact nothing but a picture, wrapped up in paper.

She looked at the picture curiously. A baby's face smiled up at her, and her own lips curved a bit in answer to the laughing challenge in the little one's eyes.

Then she turned it over. On the back was written: "My baby, Caroline Pendlehaven, aged six months. If this picture is ever lost the finder will receive a money reward by returning it to Dr. Paul Pendlehaven, Pendlehaven Place, Ithaca, N. Y."

Money was what Edie needed. Money, food and a doctor. If she could find this Paul Pendlehaven, perhaps in exchange for the picture he would give her a bottle of medicine for her mother.

She Looked at the Picture Curiously.

Hastily changing her wet clothes, she slipped the baby's pictured face into her blouse, turned down the lamp and crept from the canal boat and with Gussie in her arms was soon lost in the forest.

CHAPTER IV.

The Pendlehavens.

In all of Tompkins county no family had more prestige than Pendlehavens'. John and Paul Pendlehaven had chosen medicine and surgery as their vocation when they were in college. John was a bachelor, and Paul a widower. At the time this story opens the latter was an invalid, his infirmity brought about by the death of his young wife, who had died at the birth of their daughter, and the disappearance of the little girl when she was but a year old. Pendlehaven place comprised a whole city block, on which stood a house, almost a mansion. In the family were John, Paul, and Mrs. Curtis and her two children, Katherine and Reginald. Mrs. Curtis was a second cousin to the Pendlehaven brothers and had made her home with them since her children had been left fatherless. Mrs. Curtis had buried two husbands, Silas Curtis, the father of Katherine, and Edmund Brown, the father of Reginald.

For over a year now Paul Pendlehaven had not left his apartments in the southern wing of the house. Many times he had told his brother, John, that he only waited with what patience he could for the call to go away, to follow after his girl-wife, and perhaps, well, perhaps his child might now be with her mother.

On the day that Uriah Devon returned from his week's bout, Doctor Pendlehaven was seated opposite his cousin, Mrs. Curtis, at dinner.

"Sarah," he began gravely, "I wish you'd consent to my taking Reginald in hand for a time. He will be absolutely ruined if something isn't done with him."

The coquettish smile which Mrs. Curtis always used in the presence of the eminent doctor left her face, and her lips drew down at the corners.

"What's he done now?" she cried.

"He isn't going to college at all," said the doctor. "He won't pass any of his examinations if he doesn't go to class and get his hours in. . . . He paused a moment and then went on, "Another thing I dislike to speak of, but I must. Reginald has no idea of mine and thine. I'm very much afraid he takes what doesn't belong to him."

Mrs. Curtis uttered a squeal.

"Goodness gracious, you accuse him of stealing," she screamed.

"I'm afraid he does, Sarah," he answered gently. "Constantly I'm missing money and things. It will hurt you to know that some one almost stripped my wardrobe of clothes, and now I find there isn't much left for poor Paul. Paul is very much distressed! I suppose if Reginald did take them, he thought they were of no value!"

"Were they?" queried Mrs. Curtis, leaning over the table, still very angry.

"Whether they were or not, Sarah," replied Doctor Pendlehaven, ignoring his young cousin's appeal, "they didn't belong to him. And they were valuable to Paul in that they held something he prized highly. It hasn't been my habit to interfere between you and your children, Sarah, but I do wish you'd ask the boy if he did take Paul's clothes. If he's sold them, I'll pay whatever the amount is."

"How perfectly disgusting," snapped Mrs. Curtis. "If the child did sell them, thinking they were no good, you'd certainly not want them back from a second-hand shop."

Doctor Pendlehaven rose from the table.

"Ask him about the suits, Sarah," he said, walking toward the door.

"Perhaps if you tell him Paul will give him a hundred dollars for them and the contents of their pockets, he'll look them up."

Mrs. Curtis rose with dignity, her damp handkerchief clenched in her hand.

"I'll not insult my only son," she said distinctly.

With a gesture of despair, Doctor Pendlehaven went out of the room.

For a moment after he'd gone, and the sound of his footsteps had been lost in the corridor, the mother stared at her daughter.

"The fact is," she burst out, "it's as Cousin John says, I haven't much influence over Reggie, but I don't believe he's as bad as people say. In a little town like this a person can't take a step sideways without old wags commenting on it. I hate Ithaca for just that reason."

"If Reggie'd behave himself," replied the lady's daughter in a bored tone, "he wouldn't have to be chattered about. My advice is, mamma, that you give him a good raking over. If you don't mind your P's and Q's you'll never have Cousin John for your third husband. I can tell you that. You're no nearer marrying him than you were ten years ago, as I can see."

"I will, though, Miss Impudence," flashed back the woman. "Paul won't be much more than in his grave before Cousin John makes me his wife. I wish to heaven Paul would die, and— and I don't notice with all your flirting and maneuvering you're getting your claws on Philip. . . . Ah, that shot told!"

Katherine's face had gone red at the words, then very white.

"How perfectly vile," she exclaimed, with a catch in her voice. Then she straightened up and laughed. "Well, I'm not forty-five years old and pretending I'm thirty-five, anyway, nor do I dye my hair, and flounce out with lace to prove I'm young. There's a shot for you, mother darling!"

The irate Mrs. Curtis rushed out of the room, followed by her daughter's mocking laugh.

For three years Katherine had been madly, passionately in love with Philip MacCauley, an intimate friend of the family. The young man's home adjoined hers, and during his orphaned boyhood he'd spent a great deal of his spare time at the Pendlehavens. But since he'd returned from France and had taken up the Salvation army work, a work which Katherine held in open contempt, the intimacy had about ceased.

CHAPTER V.

Doctor John Has a Visitor.

After remaining hidden in the forest for some time, Tonnieb stole along toward Ithaca in the gathering gloom, her heart filled with hope. To get some medicine for Edith, and to take back the picture to the father who had offered money for it, were the two things she wanted to do now. Her young mind was busy with plans for her mother. If she could find some work to do, and Edith would go with her, she would get well again.

That evening, just after dinner, Dr. John Pendlehaven was sitting in his office, his mind disturbed, his heart aching for the sick brother upstairs, and he remembered that the first three or four years after the disappearance of Paul's daughter had been spent in a frantic search. All those working on the case had finally decided that Edith Mindil, a young nurse who had cared for the child most of the time since her mother had died and was devoted to her, had left home with the baby.

He sat up suddenly, for distinctly there came to him from the wide front porch the patter of feet like the soft footpads of some stealthy night-animal. He turned his eyes on the open door that led to the porch—and then he rose. There before him stood a girl, a silent girl looking at him beseechingly—a curious demanding expression in her eyes, and she was barefooted, too. He didn't speak, nor did he move forward. She was not a patient, that he knew, for only the rich came to him for treatment.

Suddenly she smiled and took two steps toward him. "Good evening," he managed to say.

"Paul Pendlehaven?" came in a breath, and Doctor John shook his head.

"Oh! I hoped you were!" was the

FARMERS

Ship your cream to a creamery and use NUCOA at home. There are three advantages in doing this. Cream brings high prices. NUCOA costs less. You save the time and effort of making butter. Many farmers are making a big profit in this manner. Why not you? NUCOA will delight you.

Inspect Sources of Table And Medicinal Waters.

The annual fall inspection of springs and wells used as sources of medicinal and table waters is being made by the Bureau of Chemistry of the United States Department of Agriculture. One specialist has already covered the territory from Maine to Missouri and has visited 50 springs. Another is still out; when he finishes his work practically all sources from which water is sold in interstate shipments will have been studied.

Under the provisions of the food and drugs act, water for use as a beverage or for medicinal purposes comes under the regulatory supervision of the Department of Agriculture, if the water is sold outside the boundaries of the State in which the spring is located.

The department does not content itself with the analysis of samples sent in by its agents; it believes that a far more efficient protection is afforded if the water is also tested at its source. This reduces the laboratory work and affords an opportunity for specialists to conduct educational work where the conditions seem to warrant. It is extremely difficult for the layman to determine the wholesome qualities of water. Water that is clear, cool and sparkling may be dangerously polluted, while water that is brown and repulsive in appearance may be of high sanitary quality. Impure bottled water may result from the use of dirty bottles or unclean methods of handling the water. These are faults that may be easily corrected. In other instances, particularly where a health resort or village has been built around the springs and wells, it may be necessary to rebuild and reorganize.

Mr. and Mrs. Deuser having decided to retire on account of their advanced age, have placed in our hands their splendidly located farm and have instructed us, as their agents, to advertise and sell to the highest bidder on above date.

We are having pretty weather and our people are making good use of it, gathering corn and getting wood, and making preparation for winter.

Sandusky's saw mill at Craycraft, started work again last Wednesday. Also the saw mill on the farm of Mr. B. O. Hurt is busily engaged. There isn't an idle person in our part of the Lord's vineyard.

W. G. McKinley and family, of Columbia, visited his father and sisters, at this place, last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. George Redmon, and Miss Pearl Allen, of Columbia visited Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Bryant, Craycraft, recently.

Lilburn Bryant is quite poorly. He was a soldier in the World War, went overseas, and was in active service till the armistice was signed.

Messrs. Albert Bryant and B. B. Montgomery visited the family of Mr. Duff Thompson, in Green Co., last Saturday night.

Mrs. Luther Bryant has been at the bedside of her sister, Mrs. Wilson, Craycraft, for several days.

Mr. Jasper Bryant visited relatives near McGaha, last week.

Miss Susie Bryant, Gentry's Mill, visited the family of Jesse Bryant, at this place, last week.

Mr. Nat White, who is a friend to every body, and every body is his friend, is visiting relatives here.

We are sorry to learn of the death of Dr. Garlin Grissom, and express our sympathy to those to whom he was near and dear by ties of nature.

Besides the burning of Mr. E. A. McKinley's barn, he also had several hay stacks burned, and it took heroic efforts to save the dwelling. A little son of Mr. Bill Floyd started the fire. Matches, poison and loaded guns are three things that should be kept out of reach of children.

Mr. Kent Bryant attended the burial of his sister-in-law, in Russell Co.

Fairplay.

Most of our farmers are thru gathering corn and the yield was very good.

Several of our citizens were in Columbia Saturday to pay their taxes.

Mrs. Lydia G. Turner has been very sick for the past week, suffering from Erysipelas, but is some better at present.

Mrs. Sallie Samuels, of Glensfork, is making her home with her sister, Mrs. Lydia J. Turner this winter.

Mrs. Ella Pulliam, who has been with her daughter, Mrs.

M. H. Lewis, Jeffersonville, Ind., for the past six weeks, has returned home.

Mr. Francis Darnell is erecting a new residence on his father's farm, near this place. This will make nine dwelling houses on what is known as the Edwards or H. C. Baker land. When thirteen years ago there were only one. Hence our town is booming to the front.

Mr. Bruce Preston, who lives on the Harvey Ridge, happened to a very painful accident last Friday week. He was rolling a log up a very steep hill, his mules at one end of the chain and Mr. Preston walking behind the log, holding the other end. Somehow Mr. Preston aimed to hook another chain on and failed letting the log back, which rolled over him bruising him up very badly. A doctor was called and dressed the wounds. He is said to be on the mend at this writing.

Cardui "Did
Wonders for Me."
Declares This Lady.

"I suffered for a long time with womanly weakness," says Mrs. J. R. Simpson, of 57 Spruce St., Asheville, N. C. "I finally got to the place where it was an effort for me to go. I would have bearing-down pains in my side and back — especially severe across my back, and down in my side there was a great deal of soreness. I was nervous and easily upset."

TAKE

The Woman's Tonic

"I heard of Cardui and decided to use it," continues Mrs. Simpson. "I saw shortly it was benefiting me, so I kept it up and it did wonders for me. And since then I have been glad to praise Cardui. It is the best woman's tonic made." Weak women need a tonic. Thousands and thousands, like Mrs. Simpson, have found Cardui of benefit to them. Try Cardui for your trouble.

In our issue of last week we spoke of the friendly relationship of the Commonwealth, a Republican paper published at Somerset by Mr. R. Mont Feese, and the Journal, a Democratic paper in same town, published by Mr. Cecil Williams. Our article was based on a statement made by a gentleman, close to Mr. Feese, who had just returned from Somerset. The News stated that the two papers were published in the same building, only a partition separating them and that the business was conducted in partnership. We learn from the editors of the two papers that we made a mistake; that they are not in partnership and that the business is conducted entirely separate. Mr. Feese has nothing whatever to do with the sentiment of the Journal and Mr. Williams is not responsible for any matter the Commonwealth contains. The offices are not in the same building, but adjoining buildings. When the statement came to us, as we published last week, we thought that it was good for brethren to dwell together in unity, so far as business was concerned, and so stated. We knew that neither one of the gentlemen were for sale.

The President's last Message to Congress is the shortest one he has written since he became the occupant of the White House. While it takes up little space it is full of truths and sound admonitions. He said not a word directly about the League, but you could tell from certain paragraphs that he had that important document upon his mind. It may be that he will take up the League in another message to the present Congress. He recommends that United States free the Philippine Islands, and also devotes some space to the tax question. Taking it altogether it is a splendidly written document. The closing paragraph in his message reads: "I have not so much laid before you a series of recommendations, gentlemen, as I sought to utter a confession of faith, of the faith in which I was bred and which it is my solemn purpose to stand by until my last fighting day. I believe this to be the faith of America, the faith of the future, and of all the victories which await national action in the days to come, whether in America or elsewhere."

Yeggman broke into the vault of the National Bank, Hustonville, Friday night and stole $10,000 worth of bonds and War stamps. They did not get into the safe, being frightened away by the phone operator.

Senator Penroses says there will be no tax revision during the present Congress. He is the boss.

"WELL, OLD MAN, HOW ARE YOU?"

If Your Blood is Rich and Red You Say, "Fine"

ENTHUSIASM IS RED-BLOODED

Try Pepto-Mangan if You Feel Weak and Look Pale.

Sometimes you are almost down and out. You know you are not really sick, but you have a petered-out feeling. You eat little. You drag along in the morning you look at your face in the mirror. You feel years older when you see how pale and haggard you are.

It is your blood. It needs red corpuscles. Instead of poking along half sick, why don't you try taking Pepto-Mangan, the blood tonic? It has just the ingredients weak blood needs. With red blood your energy and enthusiasm return. You eat better. You tackle work and achieve.

Pepto-Mangan is widely and heartily endorsed by physicians. It is effective and easy to take. It is sold in both liquid and tablet form. The medicinal properties are identical.

Sold at any drug store. But be sure to get the genuine Pepto-Mangan—"Gude's." Ask for it by the name and be sure the full name, "Gude's Pepto-Mangan," is on the package.—Advertisement.

FORD ANNOUNCEMENT.

In considering the extent to which they can further the growth of Ford dealers generally, the building up of their individual organization, and the extent to their activities. The Ford Motor Co., have permitted us to operate in unrestricted territory. But knowing that we can not give the proper after service to our friends and customer who live beyond our territory, we have decided to confine our activities to Taylor and Adair counties. By increasing our organization and strengthening it, it places us in a better position to look after our old and new customers in after service, and places us also in a position to offer time sales to all who have not felt, during the past, that they were able to pay for a new Ford Car or Tractor at the time of its purchase. We are now prepared to offer the buyer our time sale proposition. Insurance on the car and the interest are the only additions the buyer is required to pay.

About the worst bill to be pushed at this session of Congress is the Jones bill, which seeks to make it obligatory to pay higher tariff rates upon goods brought to this country in foreign-owned ships. We have a treaty forbidding such discrimination, and aside from that, the whole thing is a subsidy of the most shameful kind. American-owned ships should try to get the business by giving good service, and not by applying at the back door of Congress for special legislation.

Fordson

For thirty five years Henry Ford, a farmer's boy, has been working on the problem of a successful tractor for the farm, and for the past fourteen years has devoted much time and vast amounts of money to the development of the present Fordson Tractor. Today that Tractor is in use on nearly 200,000 farms and if you have any doubt as to the satisfaction it gives to those who are using it, call in and get the booklet, just issued by the Ford Motor Company, and called "The Fordson at Work" and read the testimony which is there given by the multitude of owners of Fordson Tractors. No evidence can be more conclusive than that of the man who actually knows by personal experience and this is the line of testimony carried in this little booklet. There is no cost for the booklet. If you cannot call for it, write, drop us a postal, and we will mail it to you without charge. It is so valuable you ought to have it because it is the open door through which the farmer will pass from the hard working drudge to the comparative comfort of the manufacturer. The Fordson makes it possible for the farmer to plan and direct, while the machine will do the work. It presents the widest latitude for the farmer to exercise his brain power and plan how he can get the most from the soil, knowing that the Tractor will do the hard work, do it better, do it quicker, and therefore do it more profitably. This means not alone in the cultivation of the soil, in the harvesting of the crops, but in a hundred and one different demands that are made for labor, cutting of ensilage and the filling of the silo; cutting of wood; operation of the washing machine; in the lighting of the house with electricity; supplying the house with running water; bringing to the farmer's wife and daughters the conveniences of the city, relieving them of much of the hard, unpleasant part of housework.

The young folks gathered at the home of Mr. Olin Rosenbaum near here last Sunday where they were entertained delightfully with his new Edison Amberola. All spent a delightful time.

The farmers are all about through gathering corn in this part and all report a fine crop.

The menace must be stamped out in America as well as in Europe.

The straight party vote is often cast for a crooked politician.

It's getting as hard now to get a job as it recently was to dodge one.

Secretary of Agriculture Meredith has been writing an article in Munsey's on matters of live interest to not only the farmers but also to the business men of the country—the clothiers and grocers and financiers and to the ultimate consumer—to whom he makes the startling statement that this country is facing a very difficult situation with regard to its future food supply, since the planted acreage is hardly enough to meet the requirements. Secretary Meredith declares that next year conditions may be even worse if the labor shortage continues and high prices for the things the farmer has to buy. The city man will be in a bad fix if the tillers of the soil reduce their acreage and the number of their livestock and invest less in equipment and supplies, such as seeds, fertilizers, farm machinery and farm labor.

Queen Alexandra, of England widow of the late King Edward, and mother of the present King, celebrated her 70th birthday the other day. If the newspaper photographs do not lie the lady must have found the secret of eternal youth. Not that she looks as young as that day when Tennyson told her, upon arriving in England as the bride of the young Prince of Wales, "Norman and Saxon and Dane are we, but all of us Dane in our welcome to thee," but you could not guess from the pictures that she is over 50.

Congress is said to be planning to suspend all immigration into this country until it can find time to revise our immigration laws. But that would be a foolish thing to do, and would unquestionably exert an adverse influence upon our trade. Why is that Congress requires so great space of time to pass any law? The immigration laws can be amended in a week if Congress is only willing to transact business as the British Parliament transacts business. Possibly it would be difficult without a more careful study of the situation to pass an immigration bill that would be satisfactory for years to come, but a few simple amendments of the present law would enable the country to get along until a more carefully considered act could be passed—Louisville Post.

Don't try to save money buying cheap or big-can Baking Powders. You can't do it. You'll throw out more in spoiled bakings than you save on price of the powder. And don't think that old style high priced powders are best because they cost most. They are not.

has proved in millions of bake-day tests that it is the best baking powder ever made—that's why it is the biggest selling baking powder in the world today. No other baking powder makes such temptingly good—tender wholesome bakings. No baking powder of anywhere near the same quality is sold at such a low price.

You use less of Calumet—because it is the highest grade baking powder. One teaspoonful is equal to two teaspoonfuls of many other brands.

And there is no "luck" about it when you use Calumet. No loss. It is absolutely sure. It is the most economical of all. Millions of housewives use it—and so do leading domestic science teachers and cooking experts.

You save when you buy it—You save when you use it. Calumet contains only such ingredients as have been approved officially by the U. S. Food Authorities.

NOTE THIS

A pound can of Calumet contains full 16 oz. Some baking powders come in 12 oz cans instead of 16 oz. cans. Be sure you get a pound when you want it.

Some Good Ways.

An easy way to provide charcoal for the fowls is to char oats or corn for the fowls.

Frosted combs will stop hens from laying. The idea is to not allow them to get ever so slightly frosted.

I have known ducks and geese to be picked in winter. This will scarcely be the proper thing to do, though it be a tolerably warm climate. Fowls do not like to drink either very cold or very warm water, but in wintertime they want it lukewarm.

Roast the egg shells for the chickens. This brings them to the proper state of lime as it should enter the body. When they are fresh too much of the fluid adheres to the shell and this has been known to make egg eaters of the chickens.

If you have roup on the place and the chickens die, don't throw the bodies where ducks and geese can get at them. Ducks and geese will take the disease from these putrid fowls and die in a manner different from the chickens. They will die with not only blood, but matter flowing from mouth and nostrils.

In filling the incubator some persons put in more eggs than it is made to hold. They place the bottom eggs on the small end and large eggs on top. The large end holds the air cell, that is why it is left free. On the seventh day test out the eggs and this will leave plenty of fertile ones to go in the tray.

A Colorado educator, having said angle worms are edible, ate some to prove it. He is welcome to our share. We'll McSwineyize first.

Hogs are selling at the lowest price since 1916, but no chorus of rejoicing has yet gone up from those who purchase pork at retail.

REMEMBER THE PLACE

NELL & CHEATHAM, - COLUMBIA, KY.

Gradyville

We have been in mud knee deep for the past two weeks.

Some of our people are already feeling Xmas in their bones.

Hog slaughtering has been the topic of the day for the past week or so.

Corn is selling on this market at $3 to $3.75 per barrel, owing to the quality of the corn.

Dudley & Son are receiving a car load of wheat this week. Look out for cheap flour in a few days.

The stock law is now in effect in our District. W. L. Grady is the truant officer, the first day gave him a job or two. He is the right man in the right place.

We are glad to report that C. O. Moss, who has been confined to his room for the past two months with his limb, is rapidly improving and he expects to be out by the 15th.

Uncle Charlie Yates and his daughter, Miss Ella, expect to get moved to their new home in the few days. They certainly have a very desirable home.

Mr. Sam Richard and family who have been living near this place for a number of years, will leave in a few days for Campbellsville, where they expect to make their future home. They will live on a farm of Mr. L. W. Dowell, formerly of this place.

H. A. Walker our pike man came in Saturday with the Roller. We are going to have a pike out of our town in a few days.

J. N. Coffey of Columbia, spent one day last week in our city attending to some unfinished business of Uncle Charlie Yates.

Mrs. Irene Gist and her two sons, have moved from county locating on her brothers farm, known as the Robertson farm. Her two sons expect to farm the incoming year.

Mr. Otis Moss our efficient Ast., Cashier of the Gradyville State Bank, spent last Sunday at Greensburg. He reports the roads from this place to Greensburg in a fearful condition, impassable for a Ford.

Our public school will come to a close this week and we think we can speak the sentiment of every patron as well as the pupil of the District that this school has been a success in every particular. If there was the least dissatisfaction by either patrons or pupil in regard to our school no one ever knew of it. From the smallest to the largest pupil in the district they advanced rapidly with their studies. The only thing that we regret is that we have not the assurance of securing the service of the Miss Cundiff, for our teacher the incoming year. We certainly would be glad to have them with us again. Every body invited to attend the closing exercises Friday.

Rev. Jo Furkin of Keltner was in our midst the first of the week and informed us that Mr. Allen Rose, of Greensburg, one of the best tobacco men for a local buyer that comes in this section of county, was through the section of Keltner this week looking after the tobacco, and buying several crops at prices from $1.75 to $2.00 per hundred. The tobacco Mr. Rose has bought is to be delivered at Greensburg. We are very glad to know that the market is opening and that Mr. Rose, this man who certainly is a good Judge of the weed is not afraid to risk his judgment on the sales of tobacco.

Mr. J. H. Breeding one of the best farmers as well as business men of Breeding community, was in our midst one day last week and informed us that business was a little quiet in his section, owing to slow start of the sale of tobacco, as there was quite a lot of the weed grown in that part of the county, and the farming class of people depend largely on the sales of their tobacco to meet their obligation at the years end. He had also been recently informed that Messrs. Evan Gabbeat, John Fodge, and Dud Gaskin, would start for Guba and several other points to investigate the trouble in shipping tobacco to the old county. On their return the farmers in his section would know better what to do with their tobacco.

Fordson Pulls Fire Engine.

A Fordson tractor, rubber tire equipped, is being used by the City of Albany, Oregon, for pulling its fire engine. The tractor is said to make between fifteen and twenty miles an hour. When the Ford camera man was in Albany recently, he asked permission to procure a photograph of the Fordson and fire engine. The mayor had the schools dismissed, declared a holiday, and had the Fire Department pull its equipment into Main Street for photographing. The Fordson is sold by Buchanan Lyon Co.
